The Kid and Case

The Kid and Cass

The Kid and Goat.
The following brief dialogue, which the Picayune folks have chronicled, is not very low. We trust the moral will not be lost to our young exquisites.

"Excuse me, my good sir—excuse me," said the old gentleman, in a falsetto voice,

"Bless my soul, yes so I do," said the

"Kid, sir, Kid, not Goat," said Thomas, peevishly.

Green Peas for Winter Use.—The lower of green peas will be pleased to learn, that they can be preserved for winter use by simply gathering them at the proper season for using them green, shelling them and drying them in the shade, and when well cured and perfectly dry, packing them away for use. When required for use, they should first be immersed in warm water for some time, before being cooked, and will

as tender and deliciously succulent as when taken from the vines. The best method of preserving them, after they have been thoroughly cured by the above process, is to put them into close jars or bottles. In this way not only does one, but several, can

Gravies and Fried Meats.—If fried pork must be used as an article of food, to some extent, do not suffer the drippings or fat to be ever placed upon the table for gravy.—Turn it out, leaving but a spoonful or two

With the addition of salt, this makes a wholesome and palatable gravy. Gravy should be made in the same way for all fried meats. Fried meats usually, however, are served with a brown sauce, but this is not healthy.

Meats broiled on the gridiron or baked in the oven are more digestible.

A Fool in Congress.

Senaryum county was a fellow by the name of Straub in Congress, who is the most unmitigated ignoramus we ever recollect to be found in public life. He made what was called a speech, on the Nebraska bill, intended to be in favor of it, of course,) which abounds in passages unmistakably unwelcome to the author's long ears. Just read extract:

"Several newspapers have been sent to me charging members friendly to the bill with consideration with dishonesty of purpose, bribery and corruption. This vile infamous arrow, intended to pierce, is harmless at my feet. I pick it up and throw it on it. I throw it down and cut my upon it. I pick it up again, and hard

"Sir, you might as well expect a cannon from a rose bud, or a thunderbolt from ribunder of Heaven, as that the people the States and Territories will not use their own prerogative to govern themselves." This, to my mind, is the best proof I saw that the lion and the lamb were created to be birds of feather. "To think that such an ignominious assumption of the above, should represent Pennsylvania in the Congress of the United States, or representing her, that he should have sense enough to keep his mouth shut! The Saturday Post trusts he will have grace to stay at home hereafter, with his natural fisher, the "sheep under the tree," the "lion and the lamb," and the "bird of feather."

The Philadelphia butchers, as we have already stated, have entered into an agreement not to purchase beef cattle at high rates which have been demanded. A notice issued by them they say:

"We are induced to enter into these arguments, because we know that there is such a scarcity of cattle in the country to justify any such prices, and they are sustained by speculators buying them and putting them out to pasture, in order to keep up the market. They also recommend the people to refrain from buying beef at all until prices are lower, express the hope of finally breaking up schemes of beef speculation."

Mr. Knapp has turned up again at Bedford, England, and has held down rather extensive programme for the English Government touching the Eastern war.—“The probable acquisition of Austria to the Allies has alarmed Kossuth, and he insists that it shall be resisted by the English people.” He urges that the partition of Poland was the first aggressive act of the Allies, and the annihilation of Hungary the second—each of which acts as a clearly demanding the intervention of England as the prelude to the destruction of the Ottoman Empire:—“He therefore insists that England shall enlarge her demands, and require the restoration of the nationality of Poland and Hungary, as well as the preservation of Turkish nationality. These several objects being mentally consistent with each other, there is force in the remarks of Kosuth; but it is not probable that England is prepared for such extensive operations. Kosuth seems to be hopeful that a bright day for Illinois is nigh at hand, and is evidently disposed to lay the responsibility on the shoulders of England should his hopes be prostrated. We must wait and see.—Repub. & Intelligencer.

the defence. The evidence closed & the case went to the jury. About 7½ o'clock Saturday morning, and at about 10 P. M. the jury rendered a verdict of guilty. The prisoner was sent to the State prison at Auburn for the term of three years.

Miss Anna Webster, who was convicted some years ago of stealing and abducting from Kentucky, but was ordered by Col. Crittenden, has recently had some of the old indictments revived against her. — A warrant was issued for the apprehension of Miss Webster, which was served, but she being very sick, could not be removed. A guard of three men was appointed to seize, bind and watch her, but she was Senator Douglas's house in the neighborhood of the Capitol was struck by lightning in half a dozen places during the storm. and humor says he has been burnt in the lung in the office, damaged by the eggs, and that he is now stuck by lightning. But he adds, "I wasn't at home." And so he thinks, that, surviving all this, evidence is on his side.
